Knowing that CP Rail was planning a project at the crossing, checked with Josh to be sure that contact had been made with George Berrard concerning the unprotected cable that was buried by railway personnel several years ago. Josh did not know the answer to that question, but advised me to mark out the water line, because the Village has not yet completed registration with Dig Safely. Made a trip to the hardware store for marking paint, and Steve and I marked out the line. While we were working, Gayle passed by, and called to say that the railroad project had been rescheduled for later in the summer, or next fall. Gayle said that she had forgotten to let anyone know about the change, and apologized for the inconvenience.
